Workflow

1. How will we communicate?

All clients are provided with 24hour support via email and WhatsApp to make the communication process more convenient for you and for us. It helps to create a friendly, fast and useful communication between client and 2r-studio so everything is totally clear as the order proceeds and perfection is achievable as soon as possible in the conversion process. 2r-studio's WhatsApp account is accessible 24hours a day; Clients can ask their questions and even send their mark-ups, new data and... for a quicker interaction during the rendering process.

2. What is your turnaround time?

The standard turnaround time for one render is 48 working hours. Each additional room associated with the same project takes 12–24 working hours, depending on the complexity and specifications of the order. We start work on the project only after all the details are crystal clear for the client and the project manager. When posting an order you will see the approximate delivery date. Please note that it may change depending on the complexity and specifications of your order.

3. What types of files do you accept?

Generally you can send us any kind of files either hand sketch or even video briefing. But you should keep in mind that if you have exact drawings and you want us strictly follow them, you need to send them all to us. Although if you have just an idea or have no time to gather details for the task, you can send us everything you have. We'll advise, explore and develop your idea to give it a measurable advantage. For interior views we need you to separate that space and send it, specifically. Otherwise, we have much more difficulties and need more time for each interior render. We prefer CAD format for the model and drawings.

When in doubt, upload the files you have, and ask your questions — we will advise you from there.

4. What if I want some changes to the completed project?

You are always welcome to send over a list of changes you want to be made. We are happy to help you with minor amendments, even if they are not included in your original project specifications. Where the updates were not originally discussed and require a great deal of effort, the changes will be quoted separately. We are always happy to help you with updates to your project far into the future. We never neglect our clients after delivering the final result, since it is important to us to create a close collaborative partnership with our clients.
